PROJECTS

ResumeIQ — Status: In Progress

Technology Stack: React JS, JavaScript, HTML5, CSS3, Responsive Design

A resume/CV-focused web application currently under active development, aimed at helping users build and manage professional resumes through a clean, intuitive, and responsive interface. The project focuses on practical application of React-based component architecture and modern front-end development concepts.

Key Contributions / Features

- Designing a user-friendly interface for entering and organizing resume information.
- Building reusable React components to structure the application efficiently.
- Implementing responsive design principles to ensure usability across devices.
- Applying state management to handle dynamic user input and interface updates.
- Continuously refining the application as part of ongoing hands-on React JS learning.

Movie Watch List

Technology Stack: React JS, JavaScript, HTML5, CSS3, REST API Integration

A front-end web application that allows users to browse and search movies, and manage a personal watch list. Built to practice React component design, state management, and API-driven data handling in a real-world style project.

Key Contributions / Features

- Implemented browse and search functionality to help users discover movies easily.
- Enabled users to add and remove movies from a personal watch list.
- Structured the application using modular, reusable React components.
- Integrated API calls to fetch and display movie data dynamically.
- Designed a clean, responsive, and user-friendly interface for a smooth browsing experience.
